Quarter 4, 2021 - Main Highlights

- Solid gains from early-on in the fourth quarter were mostly given up as concerns about the implications of elevated inflation and a new more transmissible Covid variant weighed on sentiment. Further, the Democrat's attempt to pass the Build Back Better Act before year-end was stymied by Senator Manchin, who prefers a slimmer, more targeted package.
 - The Russell 2000 index rose 2.14% and the US Small Cap fund outperformed by 7.22%.
 - Contributions arose equally from stock selection and sector allocation, the latter of which is primarily a product of our bottom-up approach to portfolio construction.
 - Outperformance came from a broad range of sectors, although health care and information technology stood out for their outsized positive impact.
 - Certain defensive sectors - consumer staples, financials and utilities - where the portfolio is underweight held back relative returns.

To determine if the Fund is an appropriate investment for you, carefully consider the Fund's investment objectives, risk, and charges and expenses. Investing involves risk, including the possible loss of principal. International investments entail risks not ordinarily associated with U.S. investments including fluctuation in currency values, differences in accounting principles, or economic or political instability in other nations. Emerging markets involve heightened risks related to the same factors, as well as increased volatility and lower trading volume. The Fund may invest in derivatives, which are often more volatile than other investments and may magnify the Fund's gains or losses. The Mondrian Investment Partners Limited Funds are distributed by SEI Investment Distribution Co. (SIDCO). SIDCO is not affiliated with the advisor, Mondrian Investment Partners Limited. The Russell 2000 Index is a free float-adjusted market capitalization-weighted stock market index of approximately the bottom 2,000 stocks in the Russell 3000 Index. It is a widely used index for US small capitalization stocks. The Russell 2000 Value Index is a free float-adjusted market capitalization-weighted stock market index which is made up of a subset of stocks from the Russell 2000 index. The stocks included are assessed by Russell to possess value characteristics. Russell constructs its style indices using three variables: book-to-price, IBES forecast medium-term growth and historical sales per share growth.
